ON THE STREET

Bill Cunningham

On a Roll

Making a fashion statement were a few women who ride in Midtown Manhattan, often seen locking their bikes outside Bergdorf's, Saks and Barneys. Left and below, a mix of vintage and new styles, including 1930s gauntlet gloves and a new Balenciaga handbag in the basket. Some of the most colorful are the weekend racers. But beware of chaining a bicycle to scaffolding. Workers removed the scaffolding at Fifth Avenue and 57th Street that had been in place for months, much to the dismay of one bicycle owner (at top, from left).
